Hello clients and friends,

May 5th was National Travel Advisor Day! We celebrated by taking a moment to reflect on the things we love about being travel advisors. Obviously working with so many truly fantastic clients is the number one reason we love doing what we do!

Over the years we have had the opportunity to make dreams a reality for so many people. The next time you are inspired to travel, we are here to help you organize a seamless and memorable experience. Here are just a few benefits we provide as travel professionals.

We save you time

Let's say you want to have a completely memorable travel experience. Who doesn't? If you feel like staying in a castle in Germany, for example, are you going to search the internet to find that perfect fit? Good luck sifting through all of the options, many of which you have no idea of their credibility. Information overload is a real thing and many people end up spending countless hours of valuable time searching the internet to find the best destination, hotel, cruise, or tour that ticks all of the boxes. Using our wealth of experience and industry contacts, travel advisors eliminate this time-consuming step and create an enjoyable planning experience so you can focus on the fun!

We don't cost extra

In addition to that time we're saving you, travel advisors can also save your hard-earned money and plan your trip based on your budget by accessing exclusive discounts and perks that can create a superior experience at a lower cost than a trip you book yourself. Often, travel advisors can save you money because of our supplier relationships while also saving you time and effort. Since we are not search engines, you can benefit from customization and possibly even enjoy a few pleasant surprises along the way. Wonder why the couple in the cabin next to yours got champagne and you didn't? They probably used a travel advisor.

We have the resources

No one knows everything about every destination. Travel advisors, however, have a network of experts as well as access to a range of tools that the consumer does not. There is no amount of research you can do that would compare to the amount of institutional experience and network expertise at our fingertips. In many popular locations, the best hotels are the ones you've probably not even heard of. This is where a travel advisor's experience and connections help you. Travel advisors don't just know what the best hotel is, they know what the best hotel is for you and your budget and can help you find the right fit.

We will be your advocate

COVID-19. Need we say more? What a crazy year this has been! If you had travel plans canceled on you, then you understand first-hand the headache of making other arrangements or getting a refund. Even despite the latest pandemic, things can always happen. Flights are regularly canceled due to weather. Trains or cruise lines become disrupted due to wildfires or volcanoes. Do you really want to manage this kind of situation on your own? The people who make it through these situations most efficiently are those who used a travel advisor.

We will give you a better trip

At the end of the day, the goal is for you to have an amazing trip. When you work with a travel advisor, you have access to benefits you don't have on your own. We are better connected, have access to amenities you do not, and many times beat prices you find online. On top of all of this, we are here for you if things go sideways.

A travel advisor has dedicated knowledge that can turn a good vacation into a great one. No matter where you're dreaming of exploring, our team can take you there. We'll be your insider knowledge, your expert advice, and your right hand so you're never traveling alone. Reach out to us today to start planning your next trip.
